

Ko Pipi me ngā Kīrehe o te Pō

story by Jenny Hessell/translated by Paora Tibble/pictures by Donovan Bixley

Keynote

A reassuring tale about things that go bump in the night!

Description

It's night time and Phoebe needs to go to the toilet. As she ventures down the hall she thinks she is being followed by monsters. But is she?

Sales points

- A story with a little bit of scary and a whole lot of funny!
- Keen-eyed children will be able to spot each of the creatures in Phoebe's room at the beginning of the story.
- Hessell's text revels in the power of the imagination, and Bixley's illustrations are truly inspired.
- Story retold in te reo Māori by Paora Tibble.

About the reteller

Paora Tibble has worked in children's/educational publishing for over 12 years and was a senior reo Māori editor at Learning Media Ltd. He has also had several children's books published in te reo Māori. His iwi are Ngāti Porou, Te Whānau-a-Apanui, Ngāti Tūwharetoa and Ngāti Raukawa.

About the author
