

A-Z Alliteration Tongue-Twisters

Read a few of the following tongue-twisters to the class to introduce alliteration. Ask students to each choose three tongue-twisters to copy out and illustrate. Then have students extend their chosen twisters by adding more adjectives and adverbs. Students can compile their own A-Z list of alliteration tongue-twisters, which they can illustrate and share with classmates.

- Amanda Armington ate awesome anchovies, apples and almonds.
 - Billy Bob-Blue blew big, bouncing bubbles.

- Clifford Cuthbert carefully closed the clothes cupboard clasps.
 - Daniel Dawson ducked deftly as the ducks dived.

- Evelyn Egbert efficiently eluded eleven elevated eggs.
- Freddie Fathington flew far for French frankfurters.
- Gregory Grumble grew great green Greek grapes.
- Hannah Harriot happily hopped home from hopscotch.
- Ivy Impala insisted on inserting ice-cream into an icebox.

- Jimmy Jackhorn jabbed a jazzy javelin in jest.

- Karina Karter kept a key in a khaki kettle.

- Lucy Lovedale loved laughing lots at lumpy lemons.

- Morris Musselbrook made a mushy mango and mandarin mess.

- Norman Noonan nodded nicely at noisy neighbours.

- Olivia Ormand openly offered organic oranges.

- Pamela Pilsey plucked plump, purple plums and prickly pears.

- Quentin Quake quarrelled quite quietly with the queen's quartet.

- Robyn Rafter ran readily round a rare rambling rose.

- Shelly Sherman shivered in her sheer shawl in the shady shelter.

- Trinity Tricket told two twins to taste the terrifically tempting tart.

- Uma Uber's unfriendly uncle was useless using utensils.

- Veronica Vernon viewed a very vibrant violet vest.

- Wilma Wilson wearily warmed the wry walrus.

- Xavier Xenon x-rayed extra xylophones.

- Yolande Yonda yearned for yellow yolks yesterday.

- Zac Zeenan zipped and zoomed through the zany zoo.

